Information

Kungur Ice Cave is a karst cave located in the Urals, near the town Kungur in Perm Krai, Russia, on the right bank of the Sylva River. The cave is famous for its ice formations and is a popular tourist landmark.

History

Kungur Ice Cave has been known since 1703 when Peter the Great issued the decree sending a well-known geographer S.U. Remezov from Tobolsk in Kungur. He worked out the Uyezd plan and made the first sketch of the cave.

Excursion

- The examination of a large excursion ring (classic route) covers 1.5 km and takes around 1 hour and 20 min
- The second is 1.8 km and takes 1 hour 40 min
- The third is the biggest, 2 km and around 1.5 hour. On this tour, there is a laser show and the route is more difficult .

Myth

Inside the cave there is narrow path which is called “the women road” because a long time ago a foreign princess fell down on this road. After she returned from the cave she got married. Therefore, the says is that if a lady falls down on this road she will get married soon.
